

One patient can have multiple vital signs, lab results, assessments, predictions, and lifestyle entries over time.

Medical history tends to be a consolidated single record per patient.